bārak: A verb meaning to bless, kneel, salute, or greet. The verb derives from the noun knee and perhaps suggests the bending of the knee in blessing. Its derived meaning is to bless someone or something. The verb is used when blessing God (Gen 9:26) or people (Num 24:9). God used this verb when He blessed Abraham in the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3). The word is used intensively when God blesses people or people bless each other (Jos 17:14). When the word is used reflexively, it describes a person blessing or congratulating himself (Deu 29:19 [20]). Other meanings are to bend the knee (2Ch 6:13); and to greet someone with a salutation or friendliness (1Sa 25:14).
